FERA Supplies Spoiled—But Responsibility Is Disputed

MUST REFRIGERATE
Hastily-Cured Pork Must Be Kept Cold, Says Health Officer

LITTLE ROCK — Following disclosure that the Commissary Department of the FERA had been distributing spoiled meat to needy families, Dr. J. A. Summers, Pulaski county health officer, padlocked the North Little Rock commissary and served notice on FERA officials that he will close each commissary in Pulaski county unless an inspector is provided to work under his supervision and inspect the meat daily.

Dr. Summers said persons who have been receiving food orders from the FERA took to his office Monday morning a slab of pork which they had just received. This meat was filled with maggots and Dr. Summers called the North Little Rock office, where it was said to have been distributed, and ordered the office closed.

Reopened Temporarily

He later went to that commissary inspected the meat remaining there and found it to be in satisfactory condition. He permitted the office to be reopened for distribution of the meat which was there, but directed later that no meat be distributed pending a revision of the methods for handling it.

A conference between Dr. Summers, Dr. T. V. Webb, city health officer, representatives of the State Health Department and the FERA officials has been called for Tuesday at the court house.

The FERA has a commissary office in each township, and has been distributing from 20,000 to 30,000 pounds of pork each week in Pulaski county. It was said, "The meat is the government pork killed in the corn-hog production control program and is being shipped here from other states. The Big Rock township commissary is located in the basement of the old Federal building."

Grocery and food orders on the commissaries are issued by the county relief organization and the orders are filled at the township commissaries. E. E. Casteberry is state commissary officer.

Other Complaints Received

"Six or seven groups of persons on the relief rolls have come to me in the last three months complaining about the condition of the meat that was being distributed," Dr. Summers said. "I have had innumerable telephone calls and I understand that the meat distributed from all of the commissaries is of the same condition. Monday, when the meat itself was brought to me, I ordered distribution to cease. We are going to have daily inspection of this meat and it is going to be in first class condition before distribution or I will close every commissary in the county."

"The pork appears to have been hastily cured, and it cannot be expected to remain in suitable condition unless cold storage is provided or some other method of distribution is adopted to protect it."

The commissary offices distribute government pork, lard, and other wheat products, it is reported. In some instances canned beef is used instead of pork.

Assistance Welcomed

FERA officials said Monday night that they had been warned that the pork might spoil in hot weather, and that they had asked the assistance of health authorities throughout the state in inspecting the meat before distribution.

"We have been depending upon the health officers," it was said. "For we certainly have no desire to distribute meat which is not fit for consumption. We believe the situation will be worked out satisfactorily."

ABOARD U. S. S. NEW ORLEANS Accompanying President Roosevelt —(AP)—President Roosevelt watched the cruisers Houston and New Orleans in long range gunnery and range-finding practice Monday afternoon, as he sped to Clipperton Island, 2,000 miles out from the Panama Canal.

Making a fast 21-knot pace, the president's ship held to the Clipperton island course, somewhat southerly from the regular Hawaii route. At 6 Monday night he was 400 miles distant from the island located off Mexico and due south of the mouth of the Gulf of California.

The day was spent leisurely aboard the Houston, Monday night Captain Walter B. Woodson entertained the presidential party at dinner.

President Roosevelt perused press reports of the general strike in San Francisco but offered no comment.

San Francisco Strike Spreads Northward Along Coast Tuesday

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. —(AP)—More than 100,000 workers in 15 cotton mills Tuesday headed the call for a state-wide walkout in textile plants.

Five mills were closed here and another awaited a conference with operators. Other mills at Gadsden, Jasper, Gunterville and Birmingham closed down at the change in shift after a representative of the United Textile Workers, said more than 22,000 would be on strike by 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

New Truckmen's Strike MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. —(AP)—The market district, scene of disorders and two deaths in the strike last May, was quiet Tuesday as 7,000 truck drivers began a second strike.

No attempt was made to operate trucks in the district. A few were reported stopped in some parts of the city, while others were allowed to enter.

General Strike Spreads SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. —(AP)—With the grip of the general strike tightening somewhat here, it gripped Oakland Tuesday and reached toward Portland, Ore.

After days of idleness the municipal street cars rolled from their barns, but the numerous cars of the key system didn't turn a wheel in East Bay.

The walkout of the key lines trainmen initiated the general strike in the East Bay cities, extending the strike's grip to 1/2 million of the area's 1 million 300 thousand population.

Ferry boats also went out of service, crippling service for those who commute from Oakland to San Francisco. Southern Pacific ferries were left to carry the traffic alone.

Two hundred more guardsmen were moved into Oakland's west waterfront while 7,000 concentrated on the waterfront in San Francisco.

Food trucks began to move in here under heavy guard with produce, groceries and gasoline. Police released from waterfront duty at Oakland by the arrival of the guardsmen immediately were assigned to convoy duty.

No General Strike Succeeds WASHINGTON. —(AP)—So far as Labor Department records go, no general strike in recent history has succeeded.

Labor Department officials said Monday many strikes had succeeded but that no movement, general in its nature, which threatened industrial paralysis in a city or nation, had last Monday was preceded by a long series of labor disturbances. Extremely effective for a while, it collapsed after the general public joined the movement against it.

Sweden's general strike in 1909 had an ending similar to the British controversy.

The calamity at San Francisco where a general strike paralyzed the metropolitan area Monday dwarfed labor dispute developments in a dozen other troubled areas.

At Portland, Oregon, 60 unions were reported ready for a general strike unless the demands of maritime workers are granted.

At Houston, Texas, where three men were killed and three others wounded Sunday in an outbreak of the dock workers, the situation remained tense.

Official Washington carefully regarded the San Francisco situation.

9-Foot Payroll in Revenue Bureau Is Blistered by Reed

Asserts Futrell Has Packaged It With 2,036 Political Jobs

A GENERAL ATTACK

Gubernatorial Candidate Offers Platform of 7 Planks

Howard Reed, candidate for governor, brought his campaign to Hope Monday night with a scintillating speech of denunciation upon the Futrell administration and ring politics.

Speaking from his sound truck before an audience on the north side of the city hall, Reed centered his attack upon the Futrell-created revenue department and the Arkansas penal system.

He charged the governor with "gross ignorance, negligence, nepotism of the highest degree," and asserted the state was in worse condition today than when Futrell took the oath of office as chief executive.

Reed's Seven Planks Outlining his platform, Reed said if elected he would sponsor:

1. An amendment to give the people the right to vote without paying poll tax.

2. Give the people the right to elect the state highway commissioner.

3. Return the election of railroad commissioners to the people.

4. Fire at least 100 employees, from the state revenue department, and return collection of automobile license to the sheriffs.

5. Sponsor an amendment, helping schools of the state to reduce indebtedness, but in doing so would fight against a sales tax.

6. Suspend trusty guards carrying shotguns at the Arkansas penal farm and replace them with capable farmers.

7. Bring about relief to the sick and insane persons at the state asylum.

Condemning Futrell, Reed asserted that the governor had "leaned upon certain followers to run the affairs of the state who had selfish interests to serve, and had betrayed the people of Arkansas who had placed him in office as a Moses to lead the people out of a wilderness."

Touching again on the revenue department, Reed said that the governor had built up a powerful political ring placing 2,036 employees in this one department.

The payroll, he said, "is nine feet long, typewritten, costing the state more money than all six state colleges combined." He charged that a certain percentage of each employee's check was withheld to build up a campaign fund for Futrell.

Reed charged that the appointment of W. R. Dyess as state relief administrator, was politics on the part of the governor.

"The RFC was later changed to CWA and then as the campaign drew nearer to election, was changed to FERA, the last initials standing for 'Futrell Emergency Relief Administration.'"

After flaying the "intolerable conditions at the state insane asylum" and promising relief if elected as the next governor, Reed launched his attack upon the Arkansas penal system.

The Penitentiary

"They are having public electrocutions, side shows, and picnics down on that farm. They have replaced mules with man-power to pull cotton plows, and the press of the nation is carrying pictures of this, bringing a black name and disgrace upon Arkansas."

"Sixteen persons have been killed with shotguns in the hands of life-term murderers. There are no witnesses to these slaughters. Convict guards are exonerated, as dead men tell no tales."

Citing the Helen Spence Eaton killing, Reed said that Convict Martin had orders from a warden of the pen to "go get her."

"Some one must assume responsibility for these killings, and it lies with the governor, but Superintendent Stedman was made the goat and asked to resign," Reed said.

Concluding his address, Reed scoffed at the highway refunding act, and charged that the governor and his cohorts had misled the people in handing out statements of debt reduction and savings in running the government.

McDonald vs Hall Preceding Reed's address, Ed F. McDonald, candidate for secretary of state, spoke briefly and outlined his program. He said he was running on his own merits and record, character and ability to discharge the duties of

McClendon New Leader of Storks

Lloyd Coop Retires as Manager, Giving Thanks to Team

Manager Lloyd Coop Tuesday relinquished his position as leader of the Storks as the team went into the second game of a five-game series to decide the first-half championship of the Two States League.

Red McClendon formally took over the reins of the club Tuesday afternoon and announced that Ted Womble would face the Atlanta Rabbits here in the second game of the playoff series, Tuesday afternoon.

Following a baseball meeting Monday night, J. N. Hobbs, secretary of the club, announced the appointment of McClendon upon the payment of $125 to Manager Coop for debts Mr. Coop had assumed as head of the Stork club.

Mr. Hobbs said the $125 was raised through public donation, and expressed thanks to those who contributed to the fund.

Mr. Coop, in resigning, issued the following statement:

"I want to sincerely thank the good people in Hope for their loyal support given me and the Stork baseball team during the last three years."

"I appreciate your acts of courtesy. If resigning as manager will help the team win more games and will bring greater satisfaction to the fans, then I gladly give up my post as leader."

"I wish the team, under its new manager, every success and accomplishment. I have enjoyed playing with every member of the team and I want to express my appreciation for your co-operation."

Incidentally it was Manager Coop's last game and a memorable one. The leader of the Storks, who guided the team to a top position in the first half season, sat on the bench and directed the team play.

He appeared only once in the line up, going into the game in the closing innings as a pinch hitter and successfully smacked out a hit to help in the scoring.

F. Sandifer, 14, Is Killed, and Father Hurt, in Accident

Truckload of Watermelons Overturns on Bodcaw-Buckner Road

SCATTER NEGROES

Half Dozen Riding on Top of Load But They Jump to Safety

Grim tragedy rode the highway again Tuesday, snuffing out the life of a 14-year-old boy, seriously injuring his father and inflicting wounds to another person.

The boy, Frank Sandifer, died at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning in Josephine hospital.

His father, Jess Sandifer, with a concussion of the brain and internal injuries, lay critically injured.

The third person, Jason McClure, 50, was also in the hospital. He has a lacerated ear, several broken ribs and bruises about the body.

The accident occurred early Tuesday morning on the Bodcaw-Buckner road. They were en route to Hot Springs, riding on a loaded truck of watermelons.

Mr. Sandifer had hired a negro, Clinton Sanders, to drive. Sandifer and his son were riding on top of the watermelons. McClure was in the cab with the negro.

The negro driver, after several warnings to slow the truck down, suddenly lost control on a straight stretch of gravel road. The truck went into a ditch and overturned twice.

Mr. Sandifer and his son were buried beneath the machine and watermelons.

When dug out, both were unconscious. The son died about 20 minutes after arrival at the hospital here.

The Sandifers and Mr. McClure live between Bodcaw and Buckner.

Five or six negroes were riding the truck at the time of the accident, but all jumped to safety when the machine, estimated to be traveling at 50 miles an hour, left the road and overturned.

Bankhead Law Will Be Explained, 10 a. m. at City Hall

Cotton ginners of southwest Arkansas have been asked to attend a government meeting at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, July 21, at Hope city hall according to word received here Tuesday from Homer M. Adkins, collector of internal revenue, Little Rock.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Mr. Adkins, is to familiarize ginners with the provisions of administering the new Bankhead compulsory cotton control law. Farmers must present their tax-exemption certificates with cotton that is to be ginned, and any surplus cotton must bear a prohibitive tax before it can be ginned.

The playground project was sponsored by the Hope Business & Professional Women's club and was approved by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration (FERA).

The playground is open to boys and girls, but attention was called Tuesday to the fact that some children under the age of 6 are attempting to make use of the playground. This will be prohibited, as the present setup is not suitable for youngsters under 6.

The equipment is that which was installed last year by the American Legion Auxiliary, and is in excellent condition. Local merchants are supplying ice water on the grounds.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Tongue Gives No Sign of Internal Disease

In the old days, if you were sick, the doctor would come and look at your tongue before doing anything else.

It got so that people would take the appearance of the tongue as an indication of their health. And there still are people who think they can make a diagnosis of indigestion or infectious disease by this simple observation.

But today about the only time the doctor will inspect your tongue is when he's looking for a disease that relates to that organ.

The tongue contains on its surface little structures which have the double purpose of supplying the sense of taste and of permitting the tongue to handle the food that is on it.

Occasionally these little folds enlarge without producing anything in the nature of a serious disease. Sometimes they become swollen in association with an infection of the tonsils or throat.

Usually in such cases ordinary cleanliness with a certain amount of rest brings about prompt relief. There are, however, other cases in which these ordinary folds of the membrane covering the tongue disappear and are displaced by a sort of scar tissue. This condition most frequently occurs among heavy smokers or persons with very bad teeth. The condition has occasionally been referred to as smoker's patches.

It may, however, proceed eventually to the stage when the entire tongue is marked out in sections so that it looks like a map, in which case the doctors describe the condition as geographic tongue. In some cases use of radium in treatment of disorders of the tongue of this kind is successful.

A rather rare condition affecting the tongue is one in which the little folds of membrane, known as papillae, enlarge. This gives the tongue a dark appearance, so that it seems to be covered with hair.

The tongue is occasionally affected by organisms which produce swellings and growths, and not infrequently tumors may develop that are merely disturbances of growth, as well as tumors like cancer that are malignant.

It is, of course, of the greatest importance to find whether any swelling or change in the tongue is cancerous. If detected early it is possible to bring about a cure without recurrence. If detected late, there is very little chance of a successful result.

A clean mouth in which the teeth have been regularly watched for cleanliness and for freedom from decay and unevenness, is perhaps the best type of insurance that you can get against development of cancer of tongue and mouth.

Kay, Cleaver Strahan Spins a Fine Murder Story

By BRUCE CATTON

There's an air of professional competence about the mystery novels of Kay Cleaver Strahan that puts them in the "something special" classification. Her newest one, "The Hobgoblin Murder" (Bobbs-Merrill: $2) is right up to standard.

This has to do with three old maids living in a gloomy old house in a Pacific Coast town. Two of them are nice old girls, but the third is a sure-enough battle-axe, and so nobody mourns much when somebody helps her to shuffle off this mortal coil by sticking a pair of shears into her throat.

You get a lot of suspects—the two surviving sisters, a young grandniece who came to the house for shelter before the murder, three servants, and a sanctimonious old lawyer; but no matter how smart you are, a doubt that you'll be prepared for the surprise the author hands you at the end.

It's a grade-A puzzler, this, and no mistake.

"The Bachelor Flat Mystery," by R. A. J. Walling (Morrow: $2) is of the familiar British type—undistinguished, but very sound. It deals with the strange taking-off of a mysterious Australian who somehow finds his way into the flat of a young Londoner-about-town.

Several gay young bloods and two charming young women come under suspicion, and the plot is worked out with mathematical precision. It's a good, average, run-of-the-mill detective yarn.

Then there's "The Strangled Wit-

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

It's the wise mother who prepares herself now to meet the inevitable accidents that befall active children on vacation. Just what this preparedness consists of, Olive Roberts Barton, tells in a series on summer accidents, of which this is the first.

Vacation-Time Mishaps Call for Cool-Headed and Prompt Attention

The good old summer time brings its own troubles for the mother. Her children need roughage, that is, a bit of venture, and it will be a most remarkable and lucky child who will escape entirely without a bruise, or cut or blister.

The best way is to take matters as they come and not worry from dawn until dark for fear something may happen. Warnings are in order, but observations about accidents can put the strongest mother to bed herself.

As to warnings, there are of course, some things that should be absolutely " verboten," such as swimming in a dangerous spot, riding wheels, small wagons or playing ball in the street, climbing brittle trees, or going bar-foot in snake country.

Outside of such things, or whatever hazard she lives near, the mother would do better to say, "Johnny is bound to have a few accidents. Am I prepared to do the right thing at the right time? Can I get used to seeing blood without losing my head? Have I the proper materials on hand for quick help? Do I know how to use them? Will I scream or cry and make Johnny think he is hurt worse than he is? Or will I let things go, trusting that time cures most things very well?"

Keep a Handy Kit

Contents for a handy-kit cost little. Some sterilized absorbent cotton, a narrow and a wide roll of gauze bandage, some clean (boiled) old linen, iodine, peroxide of hydrogen, baking soda, salt, a tube of pure vaseline, or whatever else the doctor may suggest. Keep a basin that isn't used for anything else in the house. There won't be time always to stop and scrub one out. A household bucket or a bathroom basin may look clean, but won't be sanitary enough to use in the medical department.

Although a mother can give first aid, she must remember that except in minor cases it is only temporary. When there is a deep cut or a puncture caused by something rusty or dirty, a bad sprain, a blow on the head that causes vomiting or unconsciousness, a dog or snake bite, she should get a doctor to come at once. And in sun-sickness or in cases of near-drowning.

Watch Swelling Wounds

Also, if there has been what she thought was an innocent wound that has begun to swell and redden and cause pain. In such a case the doctor is absolutely necessary.

Every mother should have directions of some sort to refer to in case of minor accident.

A short talk with the doctor (she can take notes) will be of help. And most "mother's books" today contain the information needed. Trained nurses, Boy Scouts, Child Service Bureau, the Red Cross and school teachers are other sources of information, as well as the Children's Bureau in Washington.

CHAPTER XXIII

AMY and Howard exchanged glances of discomfort, but not of indecision. "We don't mean to be cruel," said Howard. "We can only do what we think is right. Of course a professor's salary is a great shakes, but I have a small personal income. We even have some savings, and Nancy isn't likely to suffer any privations. You gave the child to Amy, Jane. You're not concerned yourself about her since then. And we can't let you concern yourself about her now. It would only mean a renewal of interest—which doesn't seem advisable."

Jane smiled, her sudden winning brilliant smile. She saw her chance. "You certainly talk like a professor, Howard. You make me feel as small as Nancy. Now look here, you don't want any money from me. That's been made clear enough. But would you mind if I put you in the way of making some money yourself, on your own capital I mean, so that you'd not have to pinch or scrimp yourselves for the child? It happens that I can do it, right away. I'll tell you. It's one of those queer unexpected things that come along once in a blue moon. A man named Sears drifted into my office one day and said he wanted to sell a house, a big-up-town house, and he wanted to do it quietly, no publicity, and if he could he'd let it go for about a third of what it was worth. I saw he'd been drinking and at first I was just going to ease him out—and then, I decided to look into it."

She was, she thought, regaining her rightful importance. Howard was listening absently. She went on more dramatically: "I dug out the truth a scrap at a time. It was a spite sale. He and his sister are the last of a family that was once quite solidly rich and they live in the house. She's a widow with several children and she's older than he and has been trying to manage him and keep hold of what money and property that's left. He's never done any work. All he wants is life is excitement. He's crazy to go over and get in the war, but his income is all tied up with his debts and he wants a bunch of money for a special reason before he goes. So, I made up my mind to sell his equity in the house before his sister could stop him and get away."

"What was the special reason he wanted the money?" asked Howard.

"Oh that!" Jane tossed it off lightly. "Nothing creditable. The man's rotten, really. It's for some girl he's interested in. He wants to get her up in a dress shop, or beauty parlor, before he leaves you see."

"And in the meantime I'm arranging for the money. He wants cash, if you please, the whole thing in his hand, and he's going to get it. And I know, positively, that the day after I take title I can sell that equity for three, or maybe four times what I paid for it. Now, do you see? If you want to put even a few thousand dollars into it, I can treble it within six weeks. I'll treat it as part of the investment, not as a loan."

She looked at Howard expectantly.

SHE had enjoyed reciting the Sears transaction. She would have loved to go on and tell about her business, her profits, her sales, peacocking her own ability and cleverness before him.

"I suppose," he said consideringly, "that if this fellow Sears succeeds in selling the house and hands over the money to his girlfriend, his sister and her children, will lose a good bit of what they would naturally have inherited, won't they?"

"Of course. That's why the sister's tried to hold on to the property. But that has nothing to do with it. He's bound to sell, and if he doesn't sell to me, he will to someone else."

"I don't doubt it."

There was an odd silence. Jane was puzzled by his unresponsive manner. "You don't understand," she said. "This Sears is simply no good. The family's run out. It used to be quite distinguished, I believe. He's going to keep his sister from getting that money because he's so fed up with having her try to control him. If I don't take this sale, someone else will. I can't pass up a good stroke of business for myself simply because there's bad feeling in the Sears family."

"No," said Howard, "I suppose not. But, frankly, it's just a shade too ironic to me to have young Nancy profit by a sale which isn't fair to somebody else's children."

"But that's so—so remote!"

"Oh Jane," broke in Amy, "don't let's argue about it. Howard's perfectly right. We don't want money made in a way that's hard on other people."

"But I want to do something for Nancy and you, too!"

"We understand about your good intentions, Jane," said Howard, "and give you due credit for the same. But seriously, the biggest thing you can do for Nancy is to leave her alone and not tangle her up in any feverish emotional jams. If she ever finds out that she's got two mothers instead of one it might be painful and unsettling. It might give a bad twist to her life. We'll bring her up the very best we can, you know that, within our own means."

THEY were pushing her out, distancing themselves away from her, not unkindly exactly, but ineluctably. She struggled to understand them, they battled and evaded her. "Are you afraid I can't swing this deal?" she asked. "Or that everything isn't exactly as I've told you. I'll have my secretary send on the contract of sale, and pictures of the house and records showing what other property in that neighborhood has sold for recently. And I'll put up security or whatever money you'd invest. I'd make the whole thing absolutely safe for you."

"Opposition always was a tonic for you, Jane," said Amy, smiling, "but this time you're headed the wrong way. We don't doubt your truth, nor yet your ability. I'm perfectly certain that you'll buy Mr. What's-his-name's house and sell it at a grand profit. But count us out on it. We can't do it."

Jane wondered if perhaps they actually didn't have any money saved and didn't want to let her know.

"I'm sorry you feel that way," she said aloud, "but if you change your mind while I'm here, it won't be too late. I wish you would change your mind."

"How long are you going to be here?" asked Amy.

"Not long, only till I get Aunt Rosa's affairs straight again. It's not as bad as she thought. She was only sick and blue—that old trainor in old Mr. Mansey's office had got on her nerves. But I settled him, this afternoon, and Aunt Rosa jerked right up."

Amy began to laugh. She could not help it. "Oh Jane, you're priceless. I'd have loved to hear you dealing with Jimmy Trainor—he is so fresh and thinks he knows it all!"

Jane laughed, too, and began to pull on her fur coat. Howard helped her and she was intensely conscious of his nearness.

WHEN the door had closed behind her flourishing exit, Amy pointed an accusing finger at her husband. "You fraud, you faker," she jeered. "Suppose I'd have told her the truth, that you wanted, to name her Axelina after that old Norwegian sea-devil, and I wouldn't let you, and how you kept calling her Nancy Etticot because she had a red nose. It wasn't red either, only a nice healthy pink! You and your favorite name! Now she believes that in some occult way you responded to her own taste. She fairly purred at you. Professor Jackson, that woman yearns for you still."

"And why not? Look what a prize I am!"

"Oh yes, I had somehow forgotten that. Howard," she became comically serious and indignant. "She said Nancy wasn't good looking! For a second it made me so enraged I could hardly speak, and then—I don't know—it seemed to straighten out everything. I knew she didn't want Nancy if she could say that."

Cloudburst Hits Fort Smith Area

Breaks Intense Heat, But May Be Too Late to Save Crops

LITTLE ROCK—A rain of near cloudburst proportions at Fort Smith and light showers at Fayetteville, Harrison and other points late Saturday broke a drought of from 30 to 60 days duration which had destroyed or seriously damaged crops in northwest Arkansas.

The downpour in the Fort Smith vicinity drenched adjacent Crawford county uplands and extended westward with slightly reduced intensity.

The storm interrupted telegraph service between Little Rock and Fort Smith. Farmers expressed fear that the rain came too late to be of great aid, as pastures, gardens and most crops had suffered irreparable damage during the more than four weeks drought.

County Agent W. B. Procter of Sebastian county, reported earlier in the day it would be impossible to feed the hundreds of cattle being shipped into the Fort Smith section if the abnormally dry weather continued, and no water for pastured already scorched with 100-degree temperatures.

Mr. Procter said he had made a survey of neighboring counties in eastern Oklahoma and northwest Arkansas, and found the same situation in all sections.

Harrison reported .21 of an inch of rain at 3 p. m. which brought relief from a maximum temperature of 106 degrees Saturday and Friday, the highest reported readings in the state, but farmers said the rain would be worth little to crops.

Hope's Hollywood Excursion Contest Nears Half-Way Mark

If any one of the 14 young ladies who are winners in the Malco Theaters Inc., "Hollywood Tour Popularity Contest," show in any manner that they are movie material they will be given a screen test and try-out by Cecil B. DeMille. So wired Mr. DeMille to M. A. Lightman head of the Malco theaters.

The contest is now drawing near to half-way mark and from now on voting should be unusually heavy. The attraction of this week's two voting days, Tuesday and Wednesday, is that new star and personality, Gertrude Michael in "The Notorious Sophie Lang."

The attraction is not released for the general run until Friday but Hope gets the first Arkansas showing and from advance information it is an exceptionally good piece of screen entertainment, what the Star Friday night for the contestants' standing at the end of the third week's drive for a free trip to Hollywood with all expenses paid.

President Catches a Real "Whopper"

Roosevelt Lands 50-Pound Ono Before Quitting Cocos Island

ABOARD U. S. S. NEW ORLEANS, accompanying President Roosevelt.—(AP)—President Roosevelt Saturday night set out on his 4,000 mile cruise to the Hawaiian islands after a field day of sport on and about the Cocos island, a green dot in the Pacific ocean, 500 miles west of Panama.

Burned by the sun and wind of a day of varied rain storms and blue skies, the president retired early. Just at sunset the president's cruiser, the Houston, struck out for the West. The New Orleans followed and soon the island dropped below the horizon.

The uninhabited island will become a fond memory to the president, for while there he regained the fishing championship of his vacation party. The president caught a 50-pound ono, a fish resembling the barracuda, and he brought it out of the water without mishap.

Roosevelt's strapping son, Franklin, also caught an ono, but a shark snapped off its tail before he could get it into the boat. A marine got even with the shark by shooting it, but all hands held the honors of the day belonged to the president because of the clean landing of his catch.

The marine turned his pistol from the shark to a school of porpoises which splashed about the island. John Roosevelt had several sailfish at the end of his tackle, and he almost succeeded in landing one.

Despite a downpour of rain the president, wearing an old blue jersey and fishing boots, kept an engagement at noon for a picnic in Wallfish cove, on shore. The cove, a dent in the precipitous rocky front of the shore, provided the only place on the island where a landing could be made. The president strolled over an expanse of sandy beach and inspected an abandoned shack.

Everyone tried his skill at shooting, but the total result was a frightened dove and a punctured coconut. The president said he had no late information of official affairs in the United States which would warrant comment. For the next 10 days he will be on the Pacific cruising straight for Hawaii.

To know no rest till his life is lifted
Fully up to his great gift's height.

He must fashion his thoughts into perfect sweetness,
And cast out folly and pride from his mind.
And he who drinks from God's gold fountain
Of art or music or rhythmic song
Must sit from his soul the chaff of malice,
And weed from his heart the roots of wrong.
Great gifts should be worn like a crown befitting!

Dictator Long Is Now a Reformer

Black Eye of Long Island Night Club Peaks in on New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS. —(AP)— Senator Huey P. Long, dictator of Louisiana politics said here Monday night that New Orleans—a "cesspool of iniquity"—must get rid of its lottery kings, racketeering ward bosses, dives and bawdy houses. Presenting an oral account of his activities in the United States Senate and in the recent state legislative session at Baton Rouge, Long assailed the city police administration. Long promised that the new Police Board to be formed from representatives of civic organizations and local colleges under a law passed by his legislature, would clean up the city. "The newspapers say that the bill is just a spite attack on the city," he said. "But what we are after is to give the decent and upright people of the city a respectable police force."

"The police under the mayor of this city have countenanced a reign of vice, corruption and dishonesty. There are 1,000 dives in New Orleans."

"Governor Allen has issued a statement warning all the gamblers and dive-keepers. I don't care whether they are in St. Bernard parish, Jefferson parish or any other parish. They had better take the warning."

The larger gambling establishments in New Orleans have been closed for several weeks after a report was circulated that the governor planned to call out the state guard.

Luxurious gambling establishments in Jefferson and St. Bernard parishes, just outside New Orleans, where Long has always rolled up overwhelming majorities, we closed up Monday night.

The recent law taking the power of the Police Department from Mayor Walmesley provides that a Police Board be named from representatives from the Association of Commerce, The Young Men's Business Club, the New Orleans Real Estate Association, the New Orleans Athletic Club, the Central Trades and Labor Council and the faculties of Tulane and Loyola universities.

Total Cut of 15% on Lumber Prices

Second Reduction Made to Speed Up Home Renovation Program

WASHINGTON. —(AP)—A lumber price cut which may mean 15 per cent savings to consumers renovating or building under President Roosevelt's housing program was announced Monday by NRA.

Hugh S. Johnson's order approved recommendations of the Code Authority for the lumber and timber products industry for eight to 10 per cent reductions in products going to housing construction.

This slash, taken together with a previously ordered cut of 4½ to 8½ per cent in the price mark-up of retail lumber dealers, was said by NRA to mean 14 and 15 per cent cuts to consumers.

"The reductions announced Monday," NRA said, "were made in accordance with the previously expressed pledge of the industry to co-operate to the fullest extent in the president's housing program."

About 2,700 men working on the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge were called out on a strike. The Executive Committee of the General Strike Committee, however, asked employees of the municipal street car system to return to work at once.

A marine strike in the Port of New York was said by Capt. William A. Maher, president of the Seafarers' Council, to be inevitable unless steamship companies agree to confer with union representatives.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who took off in a plane for San Francisco made an appeal at Portland, Ore., for a peaceful arbitration of the Pacific coast controversy.

By a wide majority longshoremen of Vancouver voted to refuse to handle United States ships loaded by non-union crews.

Oklahoma Suspect Courted Another

Neal Myers Dated Girl Other Than Slain One, Says Roommate

OKLAHOMA CITY. —(AP)—Don Alred, roommate of the missing Neal Myers, University of Oklahoma student sought in connection with the sensational death of Marian Mills, the campus beauty queen, told interrogators Sunday that young Myers often had spoken of a desire to ship out of Galveston, Texas, on a freighter.

Myers' car was abandoned early Thursday at Houston not far from the gulf port, after the youth had fled from the Norman, Okla., duplex in which the beauty was found dead last Tuesday.

Mrs. Hazel Brown, fraternity house cook and owner of the duplex told authorities that Miss Mills and Myers had been staying there in an attempt to prevent maternity by the use of a quick remedy.

Alred, who said Myers spent last Saturday and Sunday nights with him also declared that the missing youth had a "date" with another girl on Sunday night. The next day, according to Mrs. Brown's story, he took Miss Mills to the duplex.

"He never did appear to be worried about anything," said Alred. "He was a pretty level-headed and calm boy."

Alred was questioned here by Updegraff, Cleveland county attorney from the college town of Norman.

Last Appeal Fails Husband's Slayer

Mrs. Antonio to Die in Chair at Sing Sing August 9

ALBANY, N. Y. —(AP)—The last hope for a new lease on life through legal procedure has faded for Mrs. Anna Antonio, 28, convicted husband slayer, and her two male accomplices, awaiting execution in Sing Sing prison on August 9.

The Court of Appeals, recalled from its summer recess, denied the motion of the woman's lawyer, Daniel H. Prior, for a reargument of the case and granted the request of District Attorney John T. Delany dismissing an application for a new trial on basis of newly-discovered evidence.

This dramatic session, climaxing a series of moves which resulted in three reprieves for the trio by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, cleared the way for the triple execution in the Sing Sing death house unless the governor again intervenes.

The motion followed an eleventh hour statement by Vincent Satta, one of Mrs. Antonio's two accomplices, absolving her of blame in the insurance murder of her husband, Salvatore, in April, 1932. The other man is Sam Faraci.

County Judge Earl H. Gallup previously had denied an application for a new trial, holding the statement was only a last-minute effort to obtain a reprieve.

Girl Gives Alibi to Sea Engineer

Says She Was With Hickman at Hour of Woman's Murder

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. —(AP)—While there was speculation over whether Millar Hickman would take the stand in his trial for the murder of Louise Jepperson, Miss Blanche McKay, blond "alibi witness" was put through cross-examination Monday.

Miss McKay corroborated the story Hickman told police that during the early morning hours on May 13, when the pretty Ogden (Ut.) girl was being attacked and strangled in Golden Gate park, he was in his own hotel rooms with Miss McKay.

Miss McKay identified a pair of gloves as those belonging to Miss Jepperson.

"I found them in Mr. Hickman's room on Sunday morning," said Miss McKay.

"He said he was glad she had left them because it would give him a good excuse to call her up because he was sorry he had let her go home by herself after the party."

"Well, did he call her?" asked Prosecutor Peter J. Mullins.

"No—he started to, I think, but I believe somebody else called about that time, and he didn't get around to it."

Saxon-Mann Garage Destroyed With Estimated Loss of $50,000

CAMDEN, Ark. —Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Saxon-Mann Motor Company building causing an estimated loss of $50,000. The fire was discovered at 7 p. m. in the rear of the garage, near the paint shop. There was only one employee on duty, and he gave in the alarm.

In addition to the large brick structure, 15 new Plymouth automobiles were destroyed as well as many used cars.

Marvin Mann was manager of the company. C. F. Saxon and other were associated with him. The building was erected several years ago and was one of the largest automobile shops in the city.

All equipment was destroyed and the building was wrecked. Adjacent structures were saved. Rush of motorists and spectators handicapped the firemen, and several of them were knocked down by hose but none was seriously injured.

Loss is only partially covered by insurance.

Stop Chills and Fever!

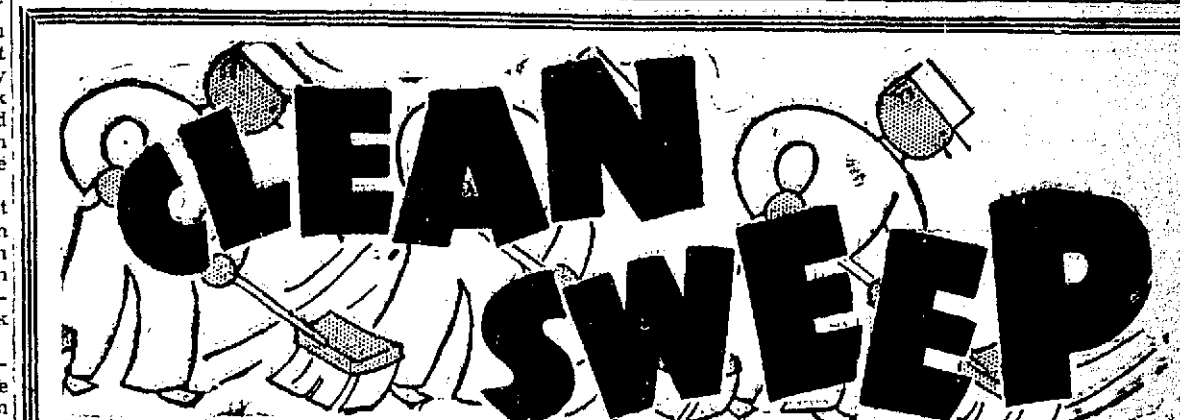

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood.

Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young.

Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 19

Referred to the People by the General Assembly, in regular session assembled, 1933.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Arkansas and by the Senate of the State of Arkansas, a majority of all members elected to each House agreeing thereto:

That the following is hereby proposed as an Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, and, upon being submitted to the electors of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Senators and Representatives, if a majority of the electors voting thereon, at such an election adopt such Amendment, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

That Article 5 of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas be amended by adding thereto the following:

SECTION 1. Not less than a majority of the members of each House of the General Assembly may enact a law.

SECTION II. None of the rates for property, excise, privilege or personal taxes, now levied shall be increased by the General Assembly except after the approval of the qualified electors voting thereon at an election, or in case of an emergency, by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION III. Excepting monies raised or collected for educational purposes, highway purposes, to pay Cr. ederate pensions and the just debts of the State, the General Assembly is hereby prohibited from appropriating or expending more than the sum of Two and One-half Million Dollars for all purposes, for any biennial period; provided the limit herein fixed may be exceeded by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION IV. In making appropriations for any biennial period, the General Assembly shall first pass the General Appropriation Bill provided for in Section 30 of Article 5 of the Constitution, and no other appropriation bill may be enacted before that shall have been done.

SECTION V. No expense shall be incurred or authorized for either House except by a bill duly passed by both Houses and approved by the Governor.

The provisions of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas in conflict with this Amendment are hereby repealed insofar as they are in conflict herewith, and this Amendment shall be self-executing and shall take and have full effect immediately upon its adoption by the electors of the State.

The above resolution was filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Arkansas on the 30th day of January, 1933.

Each elector may vote for, or against, the above proposed Amendment.

WITNESS MY HAND and Official seal of this office this 28th day of March, 1934.

ED F. McDONALD,
Secretary of State.
